WANTS LAW TO STOP CARS AT SCHOOL BUSES

Motor Groups Seek to Have Motorists Stop Before Approaching Buses.

AIMED TO SAVE KIDDIES' LIVES

Enactment by the state legislature of a law requiring motor vehicles to stop within reasonable distance of a school bus, stopped along the highway to receive or discharge passengers, is being urged by the Pennsylvania motor federation, AAA. Several deaths have occurred and a number of narrow escapes reported on Pennsylvania highways through failure of drivers to use proper caution in passing school buses, according to the federation.

"Ohio, Indiana and several other states have laws requiring that motorists stop for a school bus loading or discharging passengers," said S. Edward Gable, president of the P. M. F. "Consolidation of schools in many rural communities has brought about in Pennsylvania during the past year a big increase in the use of buses to carry children and these boys and girls must be given every possible protection. Many drivers are extremely cautious when they see a bus loaded with children on the street or highway, but there are motorists to whom this means nothing. Through a law requiring every driver to stop when a bus halts to receive or discharge passengers existing hazards can be considerably reduced."

Zones for Trolleys

"Every user of a trolley car realizes the safety feature of automobiles being forced to stop while passengers are being received or discharged. Many accidents are averted in this way and we feel sure that, if the law is extended to include school buses, it will result in the saving of many a life and limb. Many schools assign a member of their safety patrol to each bus, and these student patrolmen are doing excellent work, but a law making it necessary for cars to stop when the bus stops will make it easier for them to handle the children as they get on or off."

"Children on the bus would be instructed to get the license number of any vehicle that fails to stop and report the violation to the school principal, who in turn would take up the case with the proper police authorities. A fine of $10 and costs for failure to stop is suggested."

Mr. Gable urged motorists not to wait for enactment of such a law, however, but to protect the lives of school children by stopping when they see a bus ahead loading or unloading children. He also called attention to the law that requires motorists to slow down to fifteen miles per hour in zones where school children are at recess, or are going to or leaving a school building. "The law puts it directly up to the driver when entering a school zone, whether on congested city streets or on the open road, to exert sufficient care and caution to ascertain whether recess is in progress, or whether children are entering or leaving the building, and comply accordingly with the speed limitations required by the motor law," he explained.

Uncover Intimate Facts of Burning of McLean Home by Confederates, July 1, 1863

A human interest story about the battle of Gettysburg—the burning by confederate soldiers of the home of an uncle of one of the south's greatest generals, Stonewall Jackson, on July 1, 1863—once believed fictitious but now proved authentic, has just come to light.

The home which the confederate soldiers burned to the ground was that of the Rev. C. G. McLean, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, and stood on an eminence just west of Willoughby Run or what is now known as the old Springs hotel farm. The once famous katalysine spring is located on the farm, and mention of the water's medicinal qualities was frequently made by the Rev. Mr. McLean.

Melchor Sheads, secretary of the Adams county historical society, with the assistance of historians in the office of Dr. Robert Lee Jones, historical technician at the Gettysburg national park office, investigated records here and elsewhere, as well as newspaper files published in Gettysburg at the time, and compiled the following account of the burning of the McLean home:

In the December 8th, 1863, edition of the Adams Sentinel and General Advertiser, published in Gettysburg, appeared the following account of the interesting episode of the Battle of Gettysburg, then just six months past:

"Miss Amelia E. Harmon, the daughter of R. T. Harmon, a subaltern officer of a Pennsylvania regiment in General Grant's army, lived with her relatives in the best dwelling house in the country the ruins of which are visible from Seminary Ridge, about a mile west of Gettysburg. She was then a young girl of 17 years."

"Early on Wednesday morning the signs of the approaching tempest were so numerous and unmistakable that she was prevented from attending school at Oak Ridge Seminary in which she was enrolled."

"During the charges of Buford's cavalry, which commenced the battle, this house was forcibly occupied by the Federal sharpshooters, from which to fire upon the Rebels."

HANSON CITES FIGHT, PLUCK

President of Gettysburg College Addresses York Alumni on Thursday.

The fighting pluck of Americans as typified by noted athletes was emphasized by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, York, at the fifth annual banquet of the York alumni association of Gettysburg college, held in the West York Inn, with forty-eight members and friends of the association attending. The invocation was given by Rev. F. W. Hofmann. Dr. Louis S. Weaver, a member of the staff at the York hospital, acted as toastmaster.

Dr. Hanson told of the fighting pluck of Americans, citing as illustrations, Bill Bonthron, of Princeton; Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas, and Gene Zenzke, of the University of Pennsylvania. All these men, Dr. Hanson said, were handicapped at the very beginning of life.

In Bonthron's case he suffered infantile paralysis, but he had the fighting pluck to become a great runner in athletics of today; Glenn Cunningham suffered burned legs, but became one of the greatest milers of today. Dr. Hanson stated that in the case of Zenzke, he suffered a shot in the back, but nevertheless he became a great winner.

Other speakers for the evening were Charles W. Beachem, alumni secretary; C. E. Gerberich, of Mt. Joy, president of the alumni association of Gettysburg, and C. E. Bilheimer, director of athletics at the college.

During the banquet music was furnished by a college quartet, composed of C. Carlton Hake, William H. Kadel, Robert S. Nagle and A. Park Moore. Philip Hershey, also a member of the college, entertained with several selections on the xylophone.

Officers and members of the board of the association are as follows: President Horace G. Ports; vice president, Dean B. Arnold; secretary, Charles W. Diehl. Members of the board are Dr. Louis S. Weaver, Samuel B. Meisenhelder, George H. Hummel and the Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker.

HAS SCARLET FEVER

Miss Alda King, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. King, Hanover street, has contracted scarlet fever and the home has been quarantined.

"On the repulse of the Union cavalry, the Rebels announced their intention of burning the building, in accordance with the laws of war—it having been used (they said) as a fort."

"The family of the young lady protested, explaining that the occupation by Federal soldiers had been forcible, and not with their consent, the young lady adding that her mother, who was not now living, was a Southern woman, and that she would blush for her parentage if Southern men could thus fire the house of defenseless females, and then turn them out in the midst of a battle."

"One of the men then approached her and proposed, in a confidential manner, that if she would prove that she was not a renegade Southerner by hurrahing for the Southern heroism indignantly refused, and abandoning her burning home with her aunt, ran the gauntlet of fire of two armies."

"The circumstances of this act of vandalism are singularly curious. These buildings were erected by a brother-in-law of Stonewall Jackson, the Rev. Charles G. McLean, deceased, before the commencement of the rebellion."

"It is now ascertained that they were burned by the order of a chaplain of a North Carolina regiment, who thus burned the home-land of near relatives of the rebel's greatest general."

"General Lee, on hearing it, promised to shoot the scoundrel if he could be identified."

COUNCIL WILL DECIDE PUMPER

Expect To Take Action on Extension of "White Way" At Monday's Meeting.

A report of the joint committee studying the purchase of a combination pumper and ladder truck for the Gettysburg fire company and a vote on a contract for extension of Gettysburg's "white way" will feature the March meeting of council at the fire engine house next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The joint committee of council and the fire company which has been studying the purchase of the new apparatus has had several meetings since the February meeting and is said to be ready to report.

The vote on the contract for the extension of the "white way" for five additional blocks is expected to produce "fire works." Last month, the councilmen split four-to-three in favor of the extension of the ornamental street lighting.

Since then, however, one councilman, who was not present at the February meeting, has indicated that he will vote against the "white way" extension, leaving the matter deadlocked, with Councilman J. B. Wineman still out of town.

COUNTY HOME COSTS $15,297, SURVEY SHOWS

Costs of operating almshouses are compared with the cost of outdoor relief in the report on poor relief administration which was submitted to the general assembly at the close of the penecot administration and made public today.

The department of welfare reached the following conclusions regarding almshouses:

"The large almshouses are practically all overcrowded; only five rank as hospitals suitable for care of the sick and infirm; there is scattering employment for inmates but this is not general; little attention has been given to the questions of fitness and training in selection of paid personnel for almshouses; the majority present serious fire hazards, and standards of diet, cleanliness, sanitation, equipment and management vary widely from one institution to another."

Almshouse expenditures in Adams county in 1933 totaled $15,297, with outdoor relief fixed at $3,000. This is a yearly average of $6.13 per person.

Adams county also spent $1,591 on child care and $11,689 on the mentally ill, the yearly report shows.

STATE CLOSES ADAMS COUNTY PROJECT WORK

$4,000 Weekly Payroll Lost Here as Lack Of Funds Causes Shut-down.

FHA PROGRAM IS ABANDONED

All professional, non-manual projects operating in Adams county under the local works' division, including the federal housing administration's survey, were discontinued, Thursday evening, by Maurice W. Bushman, Adams county LWD director, on orders from Robert L. Johnson, director of the state emergency relief board.

Discontinuance of the professional projects followed within a few hours of Mr. Bushman's announcement that four work projects in the county will close today. The four work projects closed throws 136 persons out of employment.

Shutting down of the professional projects throws 70 men and women out of work.

3 Projects Continue

Besides the federal housing survey project, other professional and non-manual projects closed by Mr. Bushman, Thursday evening, include: One for the revision and indexing of Gettysburg borough ordinances; a historical survey of Gettysburg national park records; the indexing of old records at the national park office; a survey of farm buildings on the battlefield; a library project at Hunterstown; a survey of industrial disease hazards in Adams county factories; the numbering and copying of old tracings for the national park office and a health nurse project in Gettysburg.

Three work projects, employing 54 men, and all educational projects in Gettysburg and Adams county are still operating, but Mr. Bushman said he expected word at any time to discontinue the former. The educational projects are operating under a separate appropriation from the SERB, but recently the work hours were reduced from 10 to 15 per cent.

May Reopen Later

Most of the professional projects, like the work projects, were nearing completion. Mr. Bushman said, adding that the work-relief projects may reopen later if the state receives sufficient funds from the federal government.

Of the total men and women thrown out of work by the shut down of the professional projects, approximately half were employed in the office and as enumerators for the federal housing administration's survey in the county. The FHA project has been operating for three weeks, and considerable work remains to be done in listing repair and reconstruction jobs throughout the county.

$4,000 Weekly Payroll

Mr. Bushman said the payroll for all employees on work relief and professional projects in Adams county amounted to approximately $4,000 a week.

Adams county's allocation of relief funds for March is $8,100, exclusive of the educational projects. With the necessary funds cut in half, Mr. Bushman said a reduction in the number of men and women working for the LWD was obligatory.

Reduction of the personnel on work relief and professional projects has been state-wide.

KING OF SIAM QUITS THRONE

Parliament Reported To Have Rejected Terms for Return of Monarch.

Cranleigh, England, Mar. 1 (AP).—King Prajadhipok, of Siam, was announced by his secretary today to have abdicated the throne.

The announcement of abdication of "The Supreme Arbiter of the ebb and flow of the tides" was made by M. R. Smaksman who has been here with his king on "a vacation" from troubled Siam.

Bangkok, Siam, March 1 (AP).—Siamese Thursday believed their five-foot king, Prajadhipok, was all ready to carry out his threat to renounce his ancient throne.

While strictest censorship kept the press here silent, there were reports that parliament had rejected the conditions laid down by the monarch for withdrawal of his abdication threat. Neither official confirmation nor denial of the reports was to be had.

Recent open sessions of parliament have not discussed the king's conditions, made known to the delegation of three Siamese leaders which went to England in December to confer with him, but it was considered likely the matter might have been taken up at secret sittings.

Press Under Censorship
The Siamese press is under strict orders to print no word of the dispute over Prajadhipok's royal prerogatives, curtailment of which by parliament caused him to threaten abdication.

"A dispatch to London from Rangoon, Burma, Thursday, said private advices from Bangkok were that Prajadhipok's abdication was regarded as certain because parliament had rejected his condition. His nephew, Prince Ananda Mahidol, would succeed to the throne in that event, these reports said.

Now Living In England
Happy in the assumed role of an English country gentleman, King Prajadhipok, of Siam, had showed little inclination to return to the ancient golden throne which he deserted after nine uneasy years.

The "possessor of the twenty-four umbrellas," the "brother of the moon" and the "supreme arbiter of the ebb and flow of tides" resides contentedly near Cranleigh, Surrey, England, with his queen, Ramabarni, and awaits philosophically the Siamese parliament's acceptance or rejection of the terms he laid down to resume the throne.

He has his books, canoeing, tennis and shipping in neighboring Cranleigh to help him while away the time, and ten automobiles in which to tour the countryside.

Has $1,500,000 Income
Although he lives in no such regal state as in Bangkok, he does not want for luxury. Properties he owns in Siam bring him an estimated $1,500,000 yearly, and forty servants at his English estate minister to his wants.

A high-powered radio provides him much pleasure since his eyes, an old source of trouble, are none too good for reading. His smiling little queen has terriers and Sealyhams all over the place to help keep her amused.

ALLEY CAT IS NO BALM FOR DEATH OF PERSIAN

San Francisco, March 1 (AP).—The trouble with John Schultz, burly iron worker, is that to him one cat is just another.

His lack of discrimination brought him back into court to explain why he had failed to replace the stately Persian he choked to death in a beauty parlor last month because it hissed at him.

Alma Cumbs, whose Persian it was complained that the feline Schultz brought her was of the alley variety.

Municipal Judge Sulva Lazarus, who has placed Schultz under probation until restitution is made for the Persian, ordered him to go forth and try again.

STOCK REPORT

New York, March 1 (AP).—Definite trends still were lacking in today's financial markets and securities and staples, generally, backed and stilled listlessly.

U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound and American Smelting got up 1 to 2 points. Improvement was shown by International Business Machines, Cuban-American Sugar, American Commercial Alcohol, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and American Can.

Huey P. Long Will Run for Governor

Baton Rouge, La., March 1 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long announced Thursday he will be a candidate for governor in 1936.

Long made the statement as the house of representatives, in special session, was rushing toward final passage a new batch of bills he dumped in the legislative hopper Tuesday night.

"It would be fine to be governor of a state like this," he said, smiling broadly. "I think I'll be a candidate in 1936. Why, this state's got one million five hundred thousand dollars in the bank. I'm going to run for governor.

"What about the presidency," he was asked. "Aren't you going to run for that?"

"That comes later," he said.

11 FISHERMEN MAROONED ON ICE FLOES RESCUED

Chicago, Mar. 1 (AP).—Eleven fishermen, marooned since Tuesday night on ice floes in wind-tossed Lake Superior, were rescued Wednesday by a coast guard crew from the Portage, Michigan, station. Commander E. A. Coffin, of the Chicago coast guard division, was informed by S. B. Johnson, commander of the Green Bay, Wisconsin, district.

The men were marooned when a sudden shift in the wind caused the floe to break up.

Ludwig Wedemeyer, boatswain's mate of the old Chicago coast guard station, who formerly was attached to the Portage station, said between 200 and 300 fishermen go out on the ice of Keweenaw bay, near Houghton, Michigan, daily.

BLAMES BIGAMY CHARGE ON HIS MOTHER'S ORDERS

St. Louis, Mar. 1 (AP).—Angelo Lodotto, 18, has had three wives, still has two and blames the situation on his mother.

Arrested for bigamy, Lodotto explained: "You know how it is in Italy. The old people say you're going to marry, and it's too bad if you don't."

Lodotto said he wed Marie Bazile but his mother made him get an annulment.

Then he went to California, and visited the family of Sam Scorfina, in Los Angeles. Finally he said Scorfina told him he was there "to marry my daughter." When his mother wouldn't give him money to divorce his bride, Gracia Josie Scorfina, 19, Lodotto said he wed Bonnie McNicholas, also 19.

FINDS $1,000 BILL GIVES IT TO OWNER

Ottumwa, Iowa, March 1 (AP).—There are lots of honest persons in the world and Morgan Shaw is one of them.

He stooped to pick up a piece of paper Tuesday. It was a $1,000 bill. Some fifteen minutes later he saw Glenn Billick, a cattle shipper from Okaloosa, Iowa, searching around the same spot.

"Lose something?" asked Shaw. "A thousand bucks is all," was the reply.

"Maybe," said Shaw, "this is it," as he handed the bill over to its owner.

Shaw is a switchman employed by a packing company.

In Hawaii, where football is a year-round sport, the average youth who tries out for a varsity position has had 10 years' playing experience before entering the university. The island of Oahu has 50 teams of barefoot players and 32 teams which use regulation equipment.

COULDN'T STAND RICHES

Cast suddenly from extreme poverty as a "sandwich" board man to comparative wealth when he was rewarded for finding $42,000 in securities and returning them to the owner, Frank Grege, New Yorker, went insane. Crying he was "God," he shouted he could kill a person "with a look." He turned his gaze on Michael Gryzwacz and Gryzwacz dropped dead. Physician's said Grege's system was unable to stand the rich foods he began eating. Uncover Intimate Facts of Burning of McLean Home by Confederates, July 1, 1863 statement that the Rev. C. G. McLean was the brother-in-law of the Confederate General Stonewall Jackson. As this news article appeared so soon after the expiration of the events connected with it, there is every reason to believe that there was an element of truth in the statement of the kinship of the Gettysburg Presbyterian minister and the Confederate general. However, for many years this kinship was seriously doubted and considered fictitious, and as a result unworthy of further consideration.

But the mere supposition that some relationship may have existed between the local Presbyterian minister and the Confederate general was a challenge and a research was instigated to verify the facts. With the aid of the records in the Gettysburg National Military Park office and the files of old newspapers in the vault of the Times and News Publishing company, and with the assistance of the historical foreman, Gettysburg National Military park, and the librarian, Genealogical section of the Indiana State library, the investigation was conducted.

The purpose in view was to learn the truth and to thereby establish or

ALPINE AVALANCHES KILL SEVEN SOLDIERS

Paris, March 1 (AP).—Seven French soldiers were killed and two foresters missing Thursday as three avalanches poured down the sides of the French Alps near here.

Of a group of eight "Blue Devils" from the 13th Battalion who started out from their mountain post at Letura to bring a sick companion to Modene, five lost their lives when an avalanche engulfed them. Another group of Alpine infantrymen went to their aid, but they too were struck by falling snow and two were killed.

A third avalanche occurred at Charmettes, thirty miles away. A pair of foresters were believed buried in it, as they had not been heard from since.

ORDER AIRPLANE SEARCH FOR MISSING SCIENTIST

New York, March 1 (AP).—An airplane search for F. D. Thrapp, missing scientist who disappeared last November in the Colorado river canyon in Utah, was ordered Tuesday by officials of the American museum of natural history.

After reading a newspaper account of Thrapp's disappearance museum officials requested the dispatch of a plane at dawn today to fly into the inaccessible region to search for him. The plane took off from Salt Lake city.

Thrapp, who accompanied a fossil hunt in Wyoming last summer sponsored by the museum, is on leave of absence from the institution.

SEEKS AID FOR TRIPLETS

New York, March 1 (AP).—A public appeal was issued Tuesday by St. John's hospital, Long Island city, for the public to contribute funds to provide mothers' milk for the triplets born to Mrs. Joseph Rean, 28, at the hospital Monday night.

The triplets are girls and are in need of mothers' milk, the hospital said, but there are no funds to buy it. It will cost $9 a day to provide the milk.

discard another human interest story of the battle of Gettysburg.

Establish Relationship

The truth was ascertained and it may now become a matter of record that the Rev. C. G. McLean was an uncle by marriage to General Stonewall Jackson. More definitely, the first wife of the Rev. Mr. McLean was a blood aunt of the first wife of Stonewall Jackson. And as a result it can be rightfully claimed that the Confederates did burn during the first day's fight at Gettysburg the house of a near relative of General Stonewall Jackson, who happened to be his uncle instead of his brother-in-law as the newspaper account of December 1863 reported it.

It is an interesting story to trace the kinship as well as to recount the incidents relating to the burning of the McLean buildings on July 1, 1863. The following is a summary of the results of the investigation:

The Reverend Charles G. McLean was an interesting personality in the early history of Gettysburg and vicinity. He was born in Ireland in 1787, and his father, Dr. John McLean, a surgeon in the British navy, died in early manhood on the west coast of Africa. His mother, also a McLean, was left a widow before she was twenty-one. She became the wife of the Rev. James Gray, D. D. and soon after, with her husband, went to the Spruce Street church, Philadelphia. Under him Dr. C. G. McLean prepared for the University of Pennsylvania, of which he was a graduate. In 1815 the Rev. Mr. McLean married Helen Miller, of Philadelphia, who died in 1822, leaving two daughters. His wife, Helen Miller McLean, and Margaret Irvine, contemporaries and friends of Dr. Benjamin Rush, Helen Miller's sister, was named Julia Stockton Rush Miller as a mark of respect toward Dr. Benjamin Rush's wife. This sister, Julia Stockton Rush Miller, married in 1819 Dr. George Jenkins, an Associate Reformed Presbyterian minister who later became the first president of Lafayette college and also president of Miami and Washington colleges. It was thus during the presidency of Dr. Jenkins at Washington college, Lexington, Va., that their daughter, Elinor Jenkins, became the first wife of General Stonewall Jackson, then a major in the regular army and an instructor at Virginia military institute. Thus the Rev. Mr. McLean had married the aunt in 1815, and General Stonewall Jackson, the niece in 1853.

Story of Buildings

With the kinship of the two thereby settled, it is interesting to recount the story of origin and destruction of the McLean buildings around which the human interest story is woven. The following account traces the threads of the story:

The Reverend C. G. McLean's first charge was in Gettysburg where the United Presbyterian church of Gettysburg and the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church (Hill Church) of Freedom township were in need of a regular pastor since the death of the Rev. Alexander Dobbins. When the Rev. Mr. McLean accepted the call and came to Gettysburg, he lived in the brick house at the intersection of the Turnpike and the Emmitsburg roads until he bought the farm on Willoughby's Run. During his first years as pastor of the Gettysburg church the following interesting incident in his life occurred:

"The news of the attack of the British on Baltimore during the stirring days of the War of 1812 reached Gettysburg on Sunday, when Parson McLean and his people were engaged in public worship. He immediately dismissed his congregation, telling them to go to the court house in the public square and make instant preparation to raise a company of soldiers. The court house bell was rung. The company was raised and the parson brought a stallion which he mounted and marched with his men to Baltimore. William McCurdy was elected captain, but General Smith could not use the force, and after they had done some duty, sent them home.

For some time after he purchased the farm the Rev. Mr. McLean lived in a log house on the west bank of Willoughby's Run until his fine mansion and residence was erected. It occupied a commanding position on the Keystone Mills road, about two miles west of town, a hundred yards west of Willoughby's Run and about a quarter of a mile south of the later Springs hotel buildings. It was one of the largest and handsomest county residences in the vicinity of Gettysburg.

After twenty-seven years of service with the Gettysburg and Hill Presbyterian churches, the Rev. Mr. McLean terminated his connection with them, went to Baltimore, and then to Fort Plains, New York, where he became for eight years pastor of the Associate Dutch Reformed church and where he married a second time, a Miss Mary Yates. In 1852, being unable from ill health to perform pastoral duty, he went to Indianapolis and opened a female seminary known as McLean Female Institute. He died in 1860 and is buried, together with his mother, step-father, sister, first wife, two daughters and his son, in the Evergreen cemetery at Gettysburg.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS.

Chapter 43

ACTION!

They worked with Juan-Silva silently, wiped the red from the lips of the dead man and drew him back in his chair so that his head was at a balance, supported against the high back of the chair.

"Now," said Montana, and he strode on past the fountain, to the door of that farther room out of which the voice of great-throated Estrada was making a steady rumbling.

Then he thrust the door open, and saw the general walking back and forth. The major and Jack Lascar were sprawling in chairs out of which they leaped at the sight of the Kid.

He smiled back at them, a very slow smile of a genuine amusement.

"Juan-Silva wants to speak to General Estrada," said the Kid. "Juan-Silva wants to talk to the general alone—or with me present."

The general looked rather wildly about him.

"Stay here!" urged Lascar through the twisting side of his mouth.

"Go, for God's sake!" said Major Alvarez. "Or are we to stay forever in this hell-hole?"

With a frown of military courage Estrada strode straight for the door as one resolved.

"The general is coming," called the Kid, over his shoulder, and as Estrada crossed the threshold he quickly closed the door behind him.

Turning, he heard a soft beating in the air. That was all.

So they bore the general into the middle of the room.

By that time his two guns were in the hands of Montana, and the weight of the revolvers seemed to clothe the Kid with a new strength.

Perhaps it was mere chance that made the friar deposit Estrada in the chair opposite to the death grin of Juan-Silva. But the sight of that hideous grimace turned the governor rigid.

He offered no resistance as the Kid tore his uniform coat open and reached inside it. There, in a soft coating of chamomile, he felt the hardness of meal, and knew that his guess had been right. He gave one glance inside the leather and saw the green of the emeralds. That was enough. He flashed the gold and the green at Rubriz and then dropped it into his pocket.

Brother Pascual and the outlaw, in the meantime, had bound the general to the chair he sat in.

Mateo Rubriz, standing back from the bound and gagged general, folded his arms and they rose almost to his chin with the greatness of the breath he drew. But then, gradually relaxing, he was heard to mutter: "San Juan of Capistrano, keep my hands from him. Save this dog meat for the dogs!"

"Now—Mateo—now, Pascual—we have it other pair. Here we have guns. And there are only two. You first, Mateo."

Mateo looked at his friend sideways, with a grin wider than that of a snarling cat. Then he went to the door, with Montana at his heels, and threw it open. The long-stepping Pascual was right behind them.

They went over the threshold with their guns before them, walking gingerly, as men must do unless they wish to disturb their aim.

There was not a word spoken. Then the two put their hands above their heads. To ask for mercy was a folly. They said nothing as the cords were fastened about their wrists. Then Pascual took them out of the room to the table where the dead man and the living prisoner already waited.

They were bound into chairs.

"Search them, first—search every inch of them," said the Kid.

They searched, quickly, using the flat of the hand carefully to feel whatever lay in pockets. And that was how Pascual suddenly produced from Alvarez the gleaming green eye of the last emerald.

He held it up. The Kid was already speaking.

"We have one passport, and only one. That's the word of Juan-Silva. He'll never write again, and the best we can do is to take him with us, Pascual, take that scarf on the chair—wrap it around his skinny neck and see if that will keep his mouth closed."

The friar obeyed. And as he twisted the scarf's length strongly around the neck of Juan-Silva, the pressure of the upper layers of the cloth forced the jaws to close.

"I am going out into the patio, there, to be the coachman," said Montana. "There's no weight to Juan-Silva. You can seem to be merely walking beside him, and you can hold him up. Pascual—draw that end of the scarf down his back under his cloak. Now if you keep a hand on that, his head will be raised. Not too much. He always walked with it bent forward."

"Support him—one of you on each side. I'll back the carriage to the door. When you hear the wheels, open the door and come straight out with the dead man between you—quickly, too, so that the swing of his legs may look like walking. I'll try to keep the eye of the people yonder. One chance in ten, brothers—our only chance!"

A black pang of desperation struck through the brain of Montana. But he gathered himself for half a second, and then stepped out into the white blaze of the patio. There was a pair of guards on the farther side of the open space, in the shadow of the wall. They were smoking their cigarettes, idly. And the heads of the leaders were held, now, by a mere house mozo.

The Kid sprang up lightly into the driver's place and gathered the reins, singing out, "Let their heads go, boy!"

One of the guards, calmly, deliberately, raised his rifle to his shoulder.

"El Keed!" he called out. "Get down from that place!"

The Kid merely tossed him a phrase across his shoulder.

"Why do you think Juan-Silva has been taking me out with him every day? Because he wants a real coachman, amigo."

With that he swung the leaders, and backed the wheelers with a strong pull. The carriage lurched well back to the main door of the house from which he had just stepped.

He heard one guard saying, "Put down your gun, fool: I have seen Juan-Silva making him a friend. Look! Here's the senior himself."

Tomorrow, the three friends begin a mad dash for freedom.

WINGS BOW TO SPHAS 57 TO 44

Cy Kaselman Maintains Reputation With Spectacular Goal Shooting.

"Cy" Kaselman, reputed to be one of the best shots in basketball, lived up to his reputation here Thursday evening when he gave a dazzling shooting performance to enable the Philadelphia Sphas to down the Fleet-Wings before a small crowd, 57-44.

Ten field goals, mostly long shots, were turned in by the spindly guard of the Sphas. Seldom did Kaselman miss when he shot and the inability of the Wings to keep him covered probably cost them the ball game. Kaselman also made good on all three of his foul tosses to account for 23 points.

The Wings put up a great battle against the American league champions and until the final five minutes of play were always within striking distance of the lead.

WINGS TAKE LEAD

Off to a flying start that gave them an early 5-1 lead, the Wings were overtaken when Wolfe and Kaselman collected a trio of goals. The visitors piled up a 15-9 lead in the first period.

Wernick looped a goal to start the second period and another put the Wings in the thick of the fight but again Wolfe, aided by Gott-hoffer, kept the Sphas out in front. A fast rally by the Wings in the closing minutes of the first half brought the figures to 26-23 with the Sphas leading as the half ended.

The third period was hotly contested with the invaders always managing to retain a five-point lead, due mostly to Kaselman's great shooting. Early in the fourth period the Wings brought the score to 42-40 but the sensational Kaselman came through with some long shots that sewed up the game, the Wings weakening in the final five minutes.

LOCALS STAR

Heller and Kitzmiller put up good games for the locals and carried off the scoring honors. Kaselman's individual work stole the show from the Sphas who played better than on any previous engagement here.

Boosted by the addition of Raff and Deardorff, the Bream and Plank cagers subdued the Littlestown shoe company team after a close game, 32-22. Raff and Deardorff accounted for 18 points. At half time the locals trailed 10-9 but a fast fourth period brought victory. Dell was outstanding for Littlestown.

Littlestown Wins Eleventh Battle

Playing one of their best games of the season, the Littlestown high school dribblers defeated the Maryland state school for deaf at Frederick, Maryland, Thursday evening, 37-26, in a fast game.

Littlestown got off to a good start and led the entire way. The visitors took a 10-6 lead in the first quarter and increased that to 18-12 at half time.

Maitland set the pace in scoring, with a total of sixteen points. Bollinger and Ecker put up fine defensive games.

The Maryland team returned this week from Hartford, Connecticut, where it finished fourth in the eastern states' championship tourney for schools for the deaf.

This victory marked the eleventh win in thirteen starts for the Schriver-coached aggregation. Tonight Littlestown will entertain the Biglerville high teams and a record crowd is anticipated.

QUARREL OVER ANTARCTIC THOUGHT TO BE UNLIKELY

Dunedin, N. Z., Mar. 1 (AP)—Great Britain and the United States are not likely to quarrel over the icy wastelands in the Antarctic expeditions, it was indicated Wednesday.

Lord Bledisloe, governor-general of New Zealand, received Admiral Byrd ceremonially Wednesday and officially congratulated him on the success of the second Byrd expedition, as well as the safe return of all its members from the perilous Antarctica.

As result of their exchanges, it was said, the question of ownership of Antarctic territories is not likely to arise between Britain and America.

Field workers helping launch the government's rural rehabilitation program in North Carolina found 33,000 of the 70,000 people on relief rolls were experienced in farming.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Bushman Named As Game Warden: Leo E. Bushman, Cumberland township, former clerk to the county treasurer, on Saturday received his appointment from the State Game Association as Adams County game warden to succeed the late Guy Linn, Cashtown, who died suddenly a few weeks ago.

District Office Is Coming Here: That Gettysburg has been definitely decided upon as the headquarters for district six of the State Highway Department is now an assured fact according to word received by the Times from York this morning.

At Bank Convention: Edmund Thomas, J. Elmer Musselman, Edgar A. Crouse, Edgar Deardoff, Wilson Bream, of the First National Bank, and Irvin L. Taylor and Charles Stock, of the Gettysburg National Bank, are in Harrisburg attending the state banking convention.

Entertain Hunters: Thirteen members of the Marsh Creek Hunting Club were entertained at an elaborate supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Codori at their home on North Stratton street Monday night.

Earl Deatrick, Ralph C. Deatrick, I. M. Reynolds, H. H. Thomas, Paul Lower, P. Mark Bream, Roy E. Zinn, Horace E. Smiley, Clayton Myers, of Gettysburg, and Clarence Bream, Robert Bream, J. Allen Deardoff and Charles Kuhn, of Cashtown, were the members of the club present at the affair.

Takes Over Store: C. Ross Shuman, manager of the Stephen's Drug Store on Baltimore street since it opened last November on Wednesday became the owner of the establishment. Mr. Shuman is well pleased with the reception he has been given by Gettysburg people. He came here from Harrisburg where he conducted a medicine store.

On Western Trip: Dr. J. McCrea Dickson and wife, of Broadway, have left for an extended trip to Los Angeles, California, and other

Therefore thou art inexcusable, O man, whoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things.

But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things.

And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and longsuffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

But, after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God;

Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life:

But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath.

Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil: of the Jews first, and also of the Gentiles;

But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good; to of the Jews first, and also of the Gentiles:

For there is no respect of persons with God.

For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law:

For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.

DREAMS LOST—NOT BITTER

I READ an interesting story recently of a chap from Canada who has a job at Madison Square Garden, in New York city, sweeping the ice after each hockey period. His name is Weston Gratio, and he came from Glace Bay in Nova Scotia.

There was a time when this boy had dreams of getting into the national league and becoming one of the great and applauded at the game, for he was a picked player in the minor leagues in Western Canada and could "turn on a dime" with his skates, as the saying goes. But—the war came, and then return home meant getting a job, which he did, as linesman repair man. One day, however, his spikes slipped and he fell, shattering his legs.

Gratio isn't embittered, however. He meets his old pals and associates who have come up in the game and they crack jokes and tales of old times and he is happy in the humble service which he performs.

It is a test of the highest character to lose a dream of one's life—and then not to become embittered. How small a proportion however of these dreams of ours ever come into reality. It is better to have had the dream at any rate, for dreams are of the very substance of all achievement and all happiness. The old saying that it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all is in this same strain of thought.

I have just read a remarkable review of the life of Gen. Robert E. Lee, written by Douglas Southall Freeman. I now look forward to its full reading. Great as a master soldier, yet was Lee a greater man. The greatest emphasis is placed upon the noble and enduring qualities of Lee's character. Never boastful, always considerate, yet never was he embittered, though his dreams were lost.

I wonder how many of us can enumerate even the smallest proportion of dreams that have been worked out into reality?

Who would not have dreams, however? They make life worth while. They instill courage and imagination. Dreaming of "impossibles" drives us into accomplishing the "possibles."

ABANDONS BABY BOY
TO GO 'BUY A GARTER'

New York, March 1 (AP).—Discovered as she was abandoning a baby boy Thursday in a hallway by an adjoining beauty parlor, a young woman called out as she left:

"Will you mind the baby while I go outside and buy a garter?"

The woman did not return. The boy, about eight months old, was sent to the New York Foundling asylum.

AUTO AND LOCOMOTIVE
IN FAMILY COLLISION

Sweetwater, Texas, March 1 (AP).—Engineer C. R. Hawkins and his wife are going to have something to talk about for a long time.

Mrs. Hawkins Wednesday night drove the family car broadside into a switch engine operated by her husband. It was demolished and a box car damaged but she was uninjured.

Kennamer Testifies

Phil Kennamer, shown here in a new photo, took the stand in his own defense at Pawnee, Okla., where he is on trial for the murder of John F. Gorrell, jr. Kennamer calmly testified that he entered into an extortion plot with Gorrell in an effort to prevent kidnaping of pretty Virginia Wilcox. (Associated Press Photo)

OLD-AGE PENSION
PLAN YIELDS $4,800

Turlock, Calif., March 1 (AP).—The old-age pension plans of Thomas as Blades turned into quick cash. Piles of it, all because his wife, Almira, had a knack of hiding money in out of the way places.

Blades found $4,800, he disclosed, in the bottom of the old family trunk. And only recently he and Almira had spent four months in a county home because they were supposed penniless.

He found the money, Blades said, while he was looking for the marriage certificate which would prove his age to be 83 and his wife's 72. That was in connection with the pension plan now unneeded.

One of Blades' first acts after finding the money was to refund to the county $193.86 expended in behalf of himself and his wife.

Blades expressed amazement that Mrs. Blades could have forgotten about putting the money away. As near as they could determine, it was received in payment for a ranch they sold in Oregon in 1908.

FORMER FIRST LADY HOME

New York, Mar. 1 (AP).—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, wife of the late president, returned to New York Tuesday after a six weeks' cruise to Guatemala and Panama.

Met at the pier by her son, Kermit, she went directly to the Roosevelt home in Oyster Bay. Roosevelt said that his mother was in good health.

RETIRED U. S.
JUSTICE DYING

Oliver Wendell Holmes, 94, in Serious Condition; Using Oxygen Tanks.

Washington, Mar. 1 (AP).—Oliver Wendell Holmes, once the "great liberal" of the supreme court, is so gravely ill that oxygen is being used in an effort to save his life.

Three tanks filled with gas were sent to his home, an old red brick town house at 1720 I street north-west, shortly after 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Several empty containers were taken away.

Has Bronchial Pneumonia
Justice McReynolds called the Holmes residence Thursday afternoon and confirmed the report that the venerable justice had been stricken with bronchial pneumonia. McReynolds, who served with Holmes on the bench for more than a decade, said he was resting better and that he had been ill only a few days.

His physician, Dr. Thomas A. Clayton, merely said:
"The justice is ill and at his age all illness is serious."

Condition "Unchanged"
Emerging from the Holmes residence just before 8:30 Thursday night, Dr. Clayton reported his patient's condition was "unchanged."

"He has pneumonia," the doctor said. "That's all I can say."

A friend, who preferred his name not be used, after a visit to the Holmes home, said that the jurist was "showing remarkable vitality but it will be a miracle if he recovers."

Thrice Wounded in Civil War
Holmes, who served 29 years on the supreme court bench, will be 94 on March 8. He knew Lincoln and was thrice wounded in the Civil war.

His intimate friend, Felix Frankfurter, Harvard professor, left Boston Thursday for his bedside and with Frankfurter was John G. Palfrey, the personal and legal representative of the man whose influence will be felt so long as the law endures.

In the three years since he retired from the supreme bench, Holmes had become a figure shrouded in the midst of legend.

ON READING BROWNING
One must be mentally nimble and spry.
Dear Robert Browning, to be your reader
I am reminded whenever I try
Of our boyhood game called "Follow
the Leader!"

"Follow the leader!" we used to call.
And away the swiftest and boldest darted.
Leading us over the garden wall.
Swift and agile and merry-hearted.

Harder and sterner the contest
grew.
Some of us soon at the hurdles
stumbled.
Some were too frightened the feats to do.
Others from dangerous ledges
tumbled.
Still the leader went boldly on.
Gracefully treading on beam and rafter.
And the game was ended when
there was none
Remaining with courage to follow
after.

Dear Old Browning, today I find Wide is the gap between writer and reader.
Still am I faltering far behind;
I the follower, you the leader!

Indo-Vin Medicine
Astounds This Whole Section

New, Scientific Formula Is A Complete Sensation Here In Gettysburg And Throgs Flock Daily To People's Drug Store For It.

Day after day, the new medicine, known as Indo-Vin, continues to increase in sales and demand here in the city of Gettysburg and vicinity.
In fact, at the present time, thousands of bottles of this remarkable mixture of Nature's Finest Ingredients are being purchased here and crowds are flocking in daily to People's Drug Store, where Indo-Vin is being introduced to the general public.

WHAT INDO-VIN IS!
It is a new and scientific mixture of extracts from medicinal plants which act upon EACH of the FOUR important organs—Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bowels. Indo-Vin is taken after meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles and permitting the kidneys and liver to function properly. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas pains, sourness, bloating and belching.

It will cleanse your bowels (gradually, not drastic nor severe) as they were NEVER CLEANSSED BEFORE, bringing out old, foul impurities that may have been inside of you for a long time, contaminating your blood and inner-organs.

Indo-Vin will drive the poisons
from the kidneys, and relieve backaches, bladder irritation and weakness. Relieves rheumatism and neuritis, driving out the organic poisons that cause the terrible aches and pains, giving quick relief.

IT WILL put a stop to the skin eruptions that are caused by impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver, and will put the ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks. Indo-Vin will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active;
build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN OR WOMAN,
years younger than your real age.

Following are JUST A FEW testimonials, selected at random from among the HUNDREDS that are being received from this immediate vicinity, praising Indo-Vin, urging

MRS. C. BARKER
ALL WHO SUFFER to get it and take it. Read these statements:

Dizzy Spells
MRS. C. BARKER, of 2021 Fairland
St., Pittsburgh, Pa., said: (photo appears above) "My stomach would sour in my stomach and bloated me up with so much gas that I thought my insides were going to burst. The stomach gas would press on my heart and put me in so much pain with my chest that I would get dizzy all over and I kept having terrible sick headaches due to the awful condition of my stomach. My liver was badly disordered and this caused me to feel bilious
ALL THE TIME and I was subject to the most dreadful headaches that lasted for DAYS. I tried everything under the sun but nothing helped me until I got Indo-Vin and it has done me more good than everything else PUT TOGETHER. The awful gas misery is gone now and I don't have the pains in my chest or around my heart, and the dizzy spells don't come over me. The headaches have vanished. I don't have the bilious spells like I had before and the headaches are a thing of the past. It simply improved my WHOLE SYSTEM and I want to publicly endorse it to all suffering people and urge them to get it and take it."

Stomach and Bowels
MR. JOSEPH L. GARNER, of 626
Woodbine St., Harrisburg, Pa., said:
"My meals simply would not digest. At ALL but would lie there in my stomach organs and sour and turn to gas and I'd keep belching up a sour, bitter substance and would get into an awful state of pain and misery. Was also having bowel trouble, in fact, this had gone on so long it had gotten chronic with me and I was always taking physics, and finally
I got into a run-down condition in GEN-ERAL. My constipation was awful and Indo-Vin was the first medicine in YEARS that had any effect on me, and it has worked the misery out of my whole body.
My food never turns to gas and bloating inside of me any more and I can eat a hearty meal without suffering. It gave my bowels great cleansing and they have gotten so they are regular each day, and I never used a laxative or physic. This medicine has almost changed me into a NEW PERSON and I want to endorse it to everyone who suffers."

Indo-Vin is now being introduced to the public daily here in Gettysburg at People's Drug Store. Also being sold in all the nearby towns by every good drugist throughout this whole Gettysburg section.
